NEW YORK, Oct. 6 .- Offensively and this particular feature of the game. The hits and struck out twelve men. American league champions in Manager Carrigan, Cady and Thomas have three experienced catchers who are thoroughly at home behind the plate and familiar with every detail of the position. Killifer is the veteran of the Phillies catching force, but Burns has shown, during the last season, that he is not far behind his chief in all-round ability, while Adams, the third string catcher is a youngster who, in his few try outs, has the last four. NEW YORK, Oct. 5 .- As was the case last season, when the same cities but league and their faith in his extraordindifferent clubs were involved in the ary pitching ability is shown by a recent world's series, Philadelphia and Boston statement made by Umpire Bill Klem, in will enter the coming struggle for the which he said: prize of the base ball universe with the same numerical strength in the pitching department. Both the Phillies and the Red Sox have eight twirlers who can be called to the mound by Managers Moran and Carrigan, but it is likely that not more than half this force of hurlens will be started during the series which begins late this week.

The Phillies' pitching staff includes. Alexander, Demarce, McQuillen, Rixey, Chalmers, Mayer, Tincup and Baumgartner. The Red Sox hurling force includes Foster, Leonard, Ruth, Shore, Wood, Gregg, Collins and Mays. Several of these pitchers have not figured to any extent in the general season's play and it is possible that their names will not be found in the box scores when the final reckonings are made for the series of 1915. Those most likely to go to the mound as National league representa tives are Alexander, Demarce, Mayer, McQuillen, Rixey and Chalmers, while FANS EIGHT MEN the American league pitchers will undoubtedly be selected from Foster, Leon-CHICAGO, Oct. 6.-The American league ard, Ruth, Shore, Wood and Gregg.

club drew first blood over their National In considering the strength of the league rivals for the championship of pitching departments of the Phillies and Chicago today by winning the first game, Red Sox it is, therefore, necessary to 9 to 5. Vaughn pitched for six innings, analyze the all-around ability of the sexstriking out eight of his opponents, but tet named. An unusual difficulty is which was a triple by Eddie Collins, and netted the Americans four runs and the game. This rally was enough for Vaughn, and Humphries who succeeded him was unable to stop the attack of Manager and is Manager Pat Moran's trump card Rowland's sluggers. The total paid at- to be played at every possible opportunity, and some clever base ball politics and diplomacy has centered about

Alexander's pitching average for the season is more than 200 points higher than any of the other Philadelphia club twirlers. Taking the six named and averaging their records for the season, gives a team pitching average of .541. These figures do not represent the strength of the Phillies, however, if Alexander is used in, say three of a possible six games. Under such a schedule the average would be increased more than 100 per cent and Moran is too shrewd a manager to overlook any such increase in strength. Following Alexander, Mayer and Demarce have proved the most successful twirlers for the National league pennant-winners. McQu'ilen has won and lost an equal number of games, while Rixey and Chalmers are alightly below the .500 mark. Against this pitching staff of one star and five twirlers of moderate ability the Red Sox are able to muster six moundmen, none of whom can quite equal Alexander's record, but all showing averages ranging from .700 to figures fifty points higher. It is due to this high class average that the Boston staff, considered as a whole, outranks the Phillies by more than 175 points. Many factors must enter into consideration when an effort is made to compare the strength of pitching staffs in a world's series. Assuming, however, that the pitchers of a pennant winning club would be just as effective against the batters of the rival combination as they were against the batters of their own league, the averages show that Alexander outranks all the Red Sox boxmen except Wood. and it is not at all certain that the latter will be called upon to work in the com-

On the other hand, the American league hurlers will have a decided advantage in every game in which they are not opposed by Alexander. Foster, Leonard, Ruth and Shore have a grand pitching average of .712, according to the latest unofficial figures, which aided by the hitting and airtight fielding of the Red Sox, should be sufficient to overcome the performances of the Phillies' second string pitchers. Against Alexander, however, their success remains to be demonstrated. As batters all these boxmen far surpens their Philadelphia rivals, but the fielding figures show that the Phillies have a slight advantage in this respect.

The tribute is well deserved, but a world's series develops some strangangles, actions and reactions. A decisive victory for the Red Sox over the Phillies with Alexander in the box, in the initial contest now so near at hand, would upset all base ball "dope" and cause consternation in National league circles. Yet it would be no more sensational than the utter collapse of the famous Mack machnie, when the Athletics lost four straight games to the Boston Braves last autumn.
